Annexure IV- Description of procedures listed and Sub-limits applicable to individual procedures under Fetal Flourish

1. Amniocentesis:

Procedure: A needle is inserted through the mother's abdomen into the amniotic sac to collect amniotic fluid.

Timing: Usually performed from 16 weeks of gestation onwards.

Indications: To detect chromosomal abnormalities (e.g., Down syndrome), genetic disorders, neural tube defects, and infections.

Inclusions -

Diagnostic testing for chromosomal abnormalities (Down's, Edwards, Patau), Genetic metabolic disorders in individuals with a positive family history, Severe structural anomaly detected on ultrasound, Maternal age >35 with high-risk screening, Recurrent unexplained miscarriages where chromosomal analysis is indicated, Congenital infection screening (TORCH, CMV).

Exclusions -

- Repeat testing for parental reassurance only.
- Complications management beyond procedure (e.g., maternal infection not covered separately).
- Litigation-related testing (paternity disputes).
- Experimental testing not included in standard guidelines.
- Procedures without prior screening justification.

2. Chorionic Villus Sampling (CVS):

Procedure: A sample of chorionic villi (tiny projections from the placenta) is taken either through the cervix (transcervical) or the abdomen (transabdominal).

Timing: Usually performed between 11 to 14 weeks of gestation (from date assigned by ultrasound).

Indications: To diagnose chromosomal abnormalities and genetic disorders earlier in pregnancy compared to amniocentesis.

Inclusions -

Genetic testing for early detection of chromosomal abnormalities, Indications based on abnormal first-trimester screen, Confirmatory testing for known parental genetic mutation, Recurrent genetic disorder history in family.

Exclusions -

- Repeat procedures after inadequate sampling without indication.
- Complications such as miscarriage management beyond primary cover.
- Testing outside recommended gestational age window.
- Investigational genetic studies not approved by medical boards.
- Procedures without prior screening justification.

3. Percutaneous Umbilical Blood Sampling (PUBS) or Cordocentesis:

Procedure: A needle is inserted through the mother's abdomen into the umbilical cord to obtain fetal blood.

Timing: Usually performed after 18 weeks of gestation.

Indications: To diagnose and treat fetal blood conditions, infections, and certain genetic disorders; also used for fetal blood transfusions.

Inclusions -

Diagnosis of fetal anemia, Intrauterine infection confirmation, Genetic and metabolic testing where amniocentesis/CVS is inconclusive, Guidance for intrauterine transfusion, Evaluation of platelet alloimmunization.

Exclusions -

- Non-standard investigational uses.
- Repeated cordocentesis for poor sampling unless indicated.
- Complications requiring neonatal intensive care beyond prenatal cover.
- Procedures without prior screening justification.

4. Fetal Tissue Biopsy:

Procedure: A sample of fetal tissue is obtained using a needle inserted through the mother's abdomen.

Timing: Varies depending on the condition being investigated.

Indications: To diagnose specific genetic disorders or structural abnormalities.

Inclusions -

Suspected fetal metabolic disorders requiring tissue confirmation.

Exclusions -

- Research-based procedures.
- Experimental therapies not listed in guidelines.
- Repeated biopsy without justification.
- Complication management outside fetal care.
- Procedures without prior screening justification.

5. Amnioinfusion:

Procedure: Saline or another fluid is infused into the amniotic sac via a needle through the abdomen.

Timing: Performed during pregnancy when there is a need to improve ultrasound imaging of the fetus.

Indications: To treat conditions like oligohydramnios (low amniotic fluid) and to improve ultrasound imaging of the fetus.

Inclusions -

Severe oligohydramnios with fetal compromise, Meconium dilution to prevent aspiration.

Exclusions -

- Repeated infusion for borderline cases without fetal distress.
- Associated maternal complications beyond immediate procedure.
- Non-standard solutions/experimental infusions.
- Procedures without prior screening justification.

6. Amnio-reduction

Procedure: Removal of excess amniotic fluid using a needle inserted into the amniotic sac under ultrasound guidance.

Timing: Usually performed in the second trimester, especially in cases of polyhydramnios or twin-to-twin transfusion syndrome (TTTS).

Indications: To relieve maternal symptoms, reduce uterine overdistension, and improve placental perfusion or manage TTTS.

Inclusions -

Twin-to-Twin Transfusion Syndrome (TTTS) with severe polyhydramnios, Polyhydramnios causing maternal respiratory compromise, Symptomatic relief in maternal distress, Ultrasound-guided therapeutic drainage.

Exclusions -

- Repeated procedures beyond guideline thresholds.
- Out-of-protocol interventions not supported by evidence.
- Experimental use outside TTTS/polyhydramnios.
- Procedures without prior screening justification.

7. Thoracoamniotic Shunt for Fetal Pleural Effusion

Condition: Accumulation of fluid in the fetal chest cavity (pleural effusion) can compress the lungs and heart.

Procedure: A shunt is placed to drain the fluid from the chest cavity into the amniotic sac.

Timing: Varies depending on the severity and progression of the effusion.

Benefits: Relieves pressure on the lungs and heart, improving fetal development and survival.

Inclusions -

Severe fetal pleural effusion with lung compression, Hydrops due to thoracic fluid accumulation.

Exclusions -

- Procedures without documented compromise.
- Replacements due to displacement unless medically justified.
- Non-standard devices.
- Procedures without prior screening justification.

8. Fetoscopy:

Procedure: A small camera (fetoscope) is inserted into the uterus through a small incision in the abdomen.

Timing: Typically performed after 18 weeks of gestation.

Inclusions -

Direct visualization for targeted fetal interventions, Entry for therapeutic procedures (laser, biopsy).

Exclusions -

- Experimental visualizations.
- Repeated procedures without indication.
- Complications unrelated to primary indication.
- Procedures without prior screening justification.

9. Fetoscopic Laser Surgery for Twin-to-Twin Transfusion Syndrome (TTTS):

Condition: TTTS is a condition that affects identical twins sharing a placenta where blood flow between the twins is imbalanced.

Procedure: Using a fetoscope, a laser is used to coagulate the abnormal blood vessels connecting the twins' circulations.

Timing: Typically performed between 16 and 26 weeks of gestation.

Benefits: Improves outcomes by balancing blood flow and reducing the risk of heart failure and other complications.

Inclusions -

Monochorionic twin pregnancies with TTTS, Laser coagulation of placental anastomoses / chorioangiomas.

Exclusions -

- Dichorionic pregnancies.
- Repeat procedures outside guideline-based recurrence.
- Procedures without prior screening justification.

10. Fetal Reduction

a. First Trimester Reduction

Procedure: Injection of potassium chloride into the heart of one or more fetuses under ultrasound guidance to reduce the number of fetuses in a multi-Fetal pregnancy.

Timing: Typically done between 11-14 weeks of gestation.

Indications: To reduce risks associated with high-order multiple pregnancies, including preterm birth, low birth weight, and maternal complications.

Inclusions -

High-order multiple pregnancies (≥ 3 fetuses), Maternal/fetal compromise due to crowding, Selective reduction in anomalous fetuses. (Genetic + Structural).

Exclusions -

- Elective reduction in uncomplicated twins.
- Procedures beyond recommended gestation window.
- Procedures without prior screening justification.

b. Selective Fetal Reduction (SFR) / Second Trimester Reduction

Procedure: SFR must be performed using a Vaso-occlusive technique only: Radiofrequency Ablation (RFA) or Bipolar Cord Occlusion (BCO) of the affected twin's umbilical cord.

Timing: The procedure is covered when performed during the second trimester, typically between 16 and 27 weeks of gestation, determined by the treating Fetal Medicine specialist.

Benefits: The primary goal is to improve the survival and reduce the risk of severe neurological injury to the remaining healthy co-twin, and to increase the gestational age at delivery.

Inclusions -

Covered for MCDA twin pregnancies complicated by severe pathologies, including severe Selective Fetal Growth Restriction (sFGR Type II/III), advanced Twin-to Twin Transfusion Syndrome (TTTS Stage III/IV), Twin Reversed Arterial Perfusion Sequence (TRAP), or major discordant fetal anomalies.

Exclusions -

- The use of chemical agents (e.g., Potassium Chloride/KCl injection),
- Procedures performed outside an accredited Fetal Therapy Center.
- Elective reduction without a severe medical indication.

11. Surgeries for neural tube defects

Procedure: Neural Tube Defects: Open or fetoscopic surgical repair of defects such as myelomeningocele (spina bifida).

Timing: NTD Repair: Usually between 19-26 weeks of gestation.

Inclusions -

Open or fetoscopic repair of spina bifida, Severe obstructive uropathy requiring shunt placement.

Exclusions -

- Mild anomalies not requiring intervention.
- Experimental procedures outside guidelines.
- Repeat surgeries for non-progressive defects.
- Requests without documented functional compromise.
- Procedures without prior screening justification.

12. Fetal Cystoscopic Surgery

Procedure: Fetal Cystoscopic Surgery for - Vesico-amniotic Shunt: Placement of a catheter between the Fetal bladder and amniotic cavity to relieve urinary tract obstruction.

Timing: Typically performed in the late first or early second trimester.

Inclusions -

Severe obstructive uropathy requiring shunt placement.

Exclusions -

- Mild anomalies not requiring intervention.
- Experimental procedures outside guidelines.
- Repeat surgeries for non-progressive defects.
- Requests without documented functional compromise.
- Procedures without prior screening justification.

13. Fetoscopic Endotracheal Occlusion (FETO) for Congenital Diaphragmatic Hernia (CDH):

Condition: CDH is a defect where abdominal organs herniate into the chest cavity, affecting lung development

Procedure: A balloon is placed in the fetal trachea to promote lung growth by blocking fluid from escaping the lungs. A second procedure is required later to remove the balloon.

Timing: Occlusion is typically performed between 27+0 and 29+6 weeks of gestation for severe cases. Balloon removal is performed in a second procedure, usually between 32 and 34 weeks of gestation, to allow for maturation before birth.

Benefits: Enhances lung development, improving survival rates and respiratory outcomes after birth.

Inclusions -

Severe congenital diaphragmatic hernia with poor prognosis, Fetoscopic balloon tracheal occlusion.

Exclusions -

- Cases with non-isolated CDH (major co-existing structural or chromosomal anomalies).
- Multiple gestations.
- Maternal contraindications (e.g., severe obesity, placenta previa).
- Short cervix ($\leq 15\text{mm}$).
- Mild/moderate CDH.
- Experimental balloon designs not approved.
- Repeat attempts without clear indication.
- Non-standard gestational age windows.
- Procedures without prior screening justification.

14. Amniotic Band Syndrome (ABS) Surgery:

Condition: ABS occurs when fibrous bands in the amniotic sac constrict fetal parts, leading to deformities or amputations.

Procedure: Using a fetoscope, the constricting bands are cut to release the affected fetal parts.

Timing: Varies depending on the severity and location of the bands.

Benefits: Prevents further damage and preserves the function and development of the affected parts.

Inclusions -

Documented limb constriction risk, Fetal survival/end-organ compromise due to bands, Fetoscopic release procedures.

Exclusions -

- Mild bands without compromise.
- Cosmetic-only correction.
- Repeated attempts with low success likelihood.
- Experimental techniques.
- Procedures without prior screening justification.

15. Fetal Aortic Valvuloplasty for Severe Aortic Stenosis:

Condition: Severe aortic stenosis can lead to underdevelopment of the left ventricle (hypoplastic left heart syndrome).

Procedure: A balloon is inserted into the fetal heart to open the narrowed aortic valve.

Timing: Usually performed between 20 and 30 weeks of gestation.

Benefits: Improves blood flow through the heart, promoting normal development of the left ventricle.

Inclusions -

Severe aortic stenosis with evolving hypoplastic left heart syndrome, Ultrasound-guided intrauterine balloon dilation.

Exclusions -

- Mild/moderate stenosis.
- Repeat dilations without progression.
- Procedures outside recommended gestation.
- Experimental catheter techniques.
- Procedures without prior screening justification.

16. Intra-uterine transfusion (IUT)

Procedure: Transfusion of compatible red blood cells directly into the Fetal umbilical vein or peritoneal cavity under ultrasound guidance.

Timing: Typically initiated after 18 weeks of gestation and may be repeated every 1-3 weeks until term.
